DO NOT DISTRIBUTE OUTSIDE OF THE KINGDOM OF TORUNDIA, ON PAIN OF INCARCERATION IN TALL TOWERS

Welcome to Torundia

Once upon a time, in a land far, far away, yet closer than you think, the royal council of Torundia came together in high spirits, to chitter and chatter on a subject most dear. They wished, with all their hearts, to hold a grand ball, in the fairest castle of Torundia. They sat and they rose, to jitter about, and planned this great event. "Two days", they said, "to gather and chatter and jitter about! To laughing and dancing and feasting, no doubt!" And so, with utmost haste, by pigeon, mirror and flying carpet, invitations were sent, to all who would come, both near and afar. From princess to ogre, to ethylene vinyl acetate, acrylonitrile butadiene styrene, hard vinyl compound, and polyvinyl chloride divas and blue aliens, all were invited to feast at the ball. And from all realms far and wide, came the reply, "Yes we will gather and chatter and jitter about! For Torundia is a great realm to visit, of that there's never a doubt!"

And so the royal council called, to all Torundians faithful and true, who wished to serve at the grand ball, "Come join us, to prepare our great hall!" And they all grabbed a cloth and a smile on the go, and cleaned the great hall, for the grand ball. They placed the chairs, and flew the banners on high, they dressed the tables and pruned the flowers. And on the last day, they sat back with a sigh, and said "Now all is ready, for the grand ball! Let's open the doors, and welcome our faraway scores!"

For through the magical forest, past the enchanted tree, to the marketplace with wondrous goods, came the guests from afar, to meet at the castle. They were greeted by Torundians, as long lost friends, with music and dancing and powerful words. And for two days straight, the visiting scores and the faithful Torundians, celebrated with glee, in the kingdom of Torundia

HOW TO TRAIN YOUR "DAUGHTER"

BY MOTHER GOTHEL AND LADY TREMAINE

When we were approached so rudely by "The ConText" and asked to write an article with useful tips on how to take care of your daughter, our first instinct was to refuse. Indeed, we were shocked and horrified at the sheer audacity that such a lower-class magazine would dare approach such fine ladies as us. But, giving it some consideration, mulling it over to the sounds of our "daughters" working hard behind us we decided to be charitable. Who are we to deny the common folk our expertise in training an obedient daughter.

Lady Tremaine: Ever since I was a girl my own mother vowed that I must find a way to power through a noble brow. I married once for love but came to my senses. I remarried due to stature of my husband's name. Onto marriage number two I knew what I must do. My husband fell ill and died in a year or two. Solved my first problem, now to problem number two. His darling girl with a peasants point of view. Should I kick her out of house? No, I told her that if she stayed, she would be the housekeeper.

Mother Gothel: I myself was shocked to be contacted, I am much too young to be a mother. I never wanted children. I was better left alone, and the nagging and bragging chilled me to the bone. Tho, one baby held the most wonderful power, and I desired it. I "borrowed" her, locked her up in a tower, and hid her away. Through training one in a tower for years, I gained a well of experience, and a few good tricks.

We will now share with you out of the kindness of our hearts, our combined experiences and knowledge. So, dearies: be silent, listen and remember;

MOTHER KNOWS BEST

1. Work them hard till they fall in line

Children are lazy, and spoiled too, but we will tell you what to do. After all there is only one way, Yours. Give them chores, let them work hard to maintain the house, clean and cook. Remind them of your endless kindness in letting them live with you. You might occasionally need to feed them, after all, who wants a passed-out child messing up their floors

2. Take away the things they enjoy

Children need structure in their life if they are to be realistic. These children think the world owes them something, but it does not. Remind them of their place. Make sure they have their own room tho, not for their enjoyment but to keep them away from guest. A small loft will do nicely

3. Get a pet

The child will be happy, and you will have a spy. Train the pet to watch the child, to make sure they do not slack off. I personally find cats to be the best pets for this task

4. Manipulation

Yes, we know in the wild they eat their young, but that is messy. We have found manipulation to be more fun. A little guilt, a lot of force and of course you have to lie. Remind them that without you they would fade and die

Leader and spokesperson of Giant Rights in a World Overrun by Humans and the protection of Geese (GRWOHPOG), Mr. Hrungnir, petitioned yesterday against the distribution of the black market. He claimed that giants are humanoids too, and should be free to live their lives without interference from goose-snatching, house-breaking, tiny men that the petition asks for protective measures taken against trespassing humans. Compensation for the loss of Geese and the immediate ban on Magical Beans. The petition is currently under discussion, and all comments on the case should be handed in to: Jack

Neighborhood warning issued in Far Far Away. Huge riots occurred after a deranged dragon crashed through the ornate window of the church, during the wedding of our lord and savoir Lord Farquaad. Police are on the lookout for the perpetrator, but they seem to have disappeared. Witnesses describe the dragon as red, with a donkey riding on its sholder

The fairy counsel have elected a new leader, to lead the fairy dusting in days ahead. 36 year old Blinky won the election by a land slide. They say they will bring in a new era of shine and glittering. We shall see how things progress, in this new era of fairy counseling

5. Apples
This tip might sound strange to you of lower class but indeed it is one of the queens' favourites. Remind them that an apple a day keeps the enemies away. If you are going through with the apple plan, make sure to do it outside, as children make such a mess when their lifeless bodies are being dragged out of your mansion

6. Tough love
Our idea of a happy home, is one where we live all alone. If the child refuses to behave, tough love is required. Lock them up till they fall in line. Keep them away from other people and keep them silent. Remind them that a good daughter is never heard. Maybe you would call it cruel, but listen to your betters, peasant

Behind the pretty face

By Penelope Knotgrass

The seven dwarfs reveal the shocking reality behind the kingdoms beloved Queen!

In an exclusive interview with the ConText, the seven dwarfs chose to finally reveal the truth about Snow White... As I am welcomed into the cozy abode of the seven dwarfs, I am hurried into an old chair surrounded by dust and cobwebs. While looking around in the small house, it brings to mind the homes of unfortunate people. One might ask, as I do, how the King and Queen would allow their citizens to live in such poor conditions. Clearly the rich and snobbish Royal family spares no thoughts for the less fortunate. Barely have I sat down, being handed a cup of tea by Doc, before the dwarfs all begin speaking "She is quite lazy you know", Bashful reveals while blushing deeply. The others nod in agreement, and Doc follows up with another juicy detail about our Kingdoms' favourite royal. "She would always be sleeping in late, seeing her awake before noon was unthinkable. And the snoring, don't get me started!" They all laugh bitterly as I wonder...is this the reason our poor kingdoms' citizens are suffering? The royal family sleeping in and snoring the day away instead of doing the job they are meant to do. The conversation flows freely as I notice the shaking hands of Dopey. Sitting in a corner all hunched over, Dopey sits shaking and muttering to himself. "Don't mind him", Grumpy says harshly, "He hasn't been himself since Snow White left. He thought she would choose to marry him instead of the prince but alas..." Pulling himself together, Dopey looks down muttering words barely heard in the absolute silence of the house: "But... but... she danced with me!" It seems, despite having her own heart saved from the knife, our spoiled royal has no problem breaking others! Finally I can no longer hold back asking the question that is on everyone's mind. Surely the dwarves could leave if they wanted. Being in possession of a rich, opulent mine should leave the dwarfs rich enough to afford all they could desire. Barely have I spoken the words before the dwarfs pale and sit rigid in their chairs. "We no longer own the mine, miss", Sleepy explains with a tired, vulnerable voice. "It belongs to the crown now, miss", Happy explains, his smile shaking like an leaf in a storm. This seems to leave all the dwarves in muted silence, and I choose to end the interview here. Leaving the small house, I can't help but think about all the opulent jewels and trinkets paraded around town by the royal family. Is this where it all comes from? This reporter encourages all our readers to think. Is this the kind of royalty we want?

I consider myself a good and dutiful troll. I abduct princesses, eat princes and maintain my bridge to the best of my ability. Recently though, goats have started showing up in my neighbourhood, trampling all over my bridge. They are marring the stones, making a ruccus, and sending dust flying under my bridge, with their obnoxious trampling. Is this what our kingdoms is coming to? Goats roaming the land willy-nilly, terrorizing innocent creatures? I even tried to eat some of them, to see if I could rid myself of them. And because they come highly recommended by dentists. But no...all I got was a tummy ache, horns stuck in my teeth and even more goats appearing. Can not the King and Queen take care of this? Is it to much to ask, of humans who supposedly have the kingdoms best at heart?

THE GIFT UNWANTED

By MALEFICENT

Well, well well... What an awkward situation. I'll admit, I was quite distressed to not receive an invitation... a Royal Christening is a public event. Yes, indeed it is the happening of the year. One would be a fool, a trout, yes even a troll to not invite a person of my prestige and nobility. Now, I am an understanding and benevolent person, and sure I could understand the need to keep the list of guests on the smaller side. However, the king and queen chose to invite those three moronic fluttering bugs. I am of course talking about the simpering Flora, the obnoxious Merryweather and the insipid Fauna. How dare they invite those fluttering fanatical fiends and not me! Now, I am a normally calm and patient person, and quite ready to forgive their breach in manners. Gathering my fanciest clothes and my most royal cape I hurriedly made my way to the christening. I even brought my pet raven, as entertainment for the kids I knew would be there. I calmly made my way up to the throne gazing around at the royalty, nobility, and gentry. It was quite the glittering occasion, and I am sure you can imagine the pain in my heart knowing I was forgotten to such an occasion. I gathered myself and walked up to the King and Queen, calmly explaining my distress and deep sorrow at not receiving an invitation. My shock and horror still shake me to this day! They proudly and boastfully stated that I was far from wanted. I was not wanted to attend. Now I will admit my temper started slowly awakening and I intended to quickly make my way from the castle. Behind me I could hear murmuring and laughter and I will truthfully admit that it broke me. I gazed upon the small child in her bassinet. Blessed shallowly by the moronic pixies hiding at the King's side. That is when I realised what had happened. My power is not easily discarded, but the King threw me aside for these imposters. These winged little specks with less knowledge than an ogre when it comes to true magic. I would show King Stefan true power, and I am sure you have heard what happened next. I laid my curse and left the castle. Now it was up to them to learn. A person need not song and beauty to live their life well. Once the King sees his mistake in trusting these winged fiends and comes to me, I will surely lift the curse. People must learn, I am not one to be insulted

Ask Fairy Godmother

Dear Fairy Godmother

I struggle with horrible, bad breath. My victims have all told me it smells like decaying flesh and rotten apples. Whenever I huff and I puff and I blow a house down, the pigs start laughing at me and throws boxes of mints at my nose. It really hurts my feelings and it makes me not appreciate my dinner. What can I do ?

The Big Bad Wolf

Dear Big Bad Wolf

It sounds like your biggest problem has nothing to do with your breath, and everything to do with your self-confidence. A Big Bad Wolf who believes in themselves will not be concerned about the opinions of a few rude pigs. Be proud of your own unique scent, and try to come up with ways to use it to your advantage. When you go out huffing and puffing next time, I suggest you prepare yourself beforehand by looking in the mirror and telling yourself: I am Big. I am Bad. I am Smelly. And I am Good Enough!

Yours truly, the Fairy Godmother

Dear Fairy Godmother

Am I the asshole for cursing my neighboring kingdom's princess to die? Now, I am not usually one to rely on the advice of lesser creatures such as a fairy godmother, but recent events have gotten me to wonder. I, a gorgeous evil fairy with all the powers of hell, was recently not invited to the royal christening. Naturally I responded with shock, and decided to show up anyways. I will admit the horror on their faces was quite enjoyable, and had they only changed their minds, I wouldn't have had to curse that wretched little brat. Alas they did not, and well... the rest is history. I do have a short fuse, it's the dragon in me. Am I the asshole here ?

Maleficent

Dear Maleficent

Really, girl? It wasn't enough that you show up uninvited to the christening, and curse a baby, you have to drag this dirty laundry out for everyone to see? For goodness' sake, have some class! You make all of us fairies look bad here! YTA!

Dear Curious guest<sup>23</sup>

Dear Fairy Godmother

I routinely go out of my way to save innocent maidens who have been trapped by terrible circumstances, often inflicted upon them by malicious witches. They're trapped in tall towers with no doors, or cursed to sleep for evermore, or their innocence has been exploited to make unwise bargains for their soul in exchange for, among others, changing their anatomy. After saving these precious damsels, usually with a chaste yet powerful kiss, I perform my sacred duty and marry them. I've always thought of myself as a selfless, heroic savior, but recently I've heard murmurs that some people think I'm unfaithful and fickle! Some even call me an opportunist, just because my kingdom has grown exponentially when my royal line has merged with several princesses! Apparently they think I should've settled down with the first girl and just... what, leave the rest to rot?? I'm pretty sure those rumormongers are just jealous, but still, perhaps I should ask... AITA?

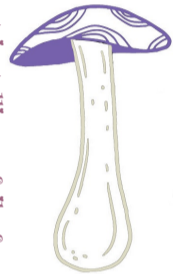

Prince Charming

Dear Prince "Charming"

My oh my, there is a lot to unpack here. Firstly, I would like to state clearly and without any room for misunderstanding. Unconsciousness is not consent! Has it occurred to you that taking advantage of a situation outside of these poor princesses' control is not the right thing to do? I recommend having a good think before ever claiming so dastardly that you bestow upon them a True Love's kiss. Remember, love is not an open door, it requires work, time and above all, having actually met when both people are conscious! In this case there is no need for a magic mirror. You are clearly a bit of an asshole. Try to think things through and perhaps it's time to settle down. You can't just prance around singing in the woods for the rest of your life. Though any moment can happen in the woods, its important to think things through. Be better!

Yours truly, the Fairy Godmother

NTA. The fault here clearly lies with the manufacturer for not installing a failsafe on the pot. I suggest you contact whoever gave you the pot and ask for information about warranty. You might even have a right of compensation for the porridge damages. Ask the village lawyer
Yours truly, the Fairy Godmother

Dear Fairy Godmother

My village smells like rotten milk. AITA for refusing to take the blame?

Dear Fairy Godmother

My magic mirror has always been kind to me and have always stated that I am the fairest in the land. Lately however, the magic mirror has changed its mind and has boastfully given the title of most fair to another. I can not live with this. What am I, if not the fairest? I have therefore lost my way and am unsure as to how to best resolve my current situation. Should I take her heart or simply throw her in the dungeon? Help me fairy godmother, you are my only hope!

Queen Grimhilde (the evil queen)

Dear Queen Grimhilde

Has it occurred to you that your magic mirror might not have your best interests at heart? Showering you with praise, but then attacking your self-confidence - that is toxic behavior in a nutshell! It sounds to me like the mirror is trying to drive a wedge between you and the other person. I suggest you go low contact with the mirror for a while

Yours truly, the Fairy Godmother

Dear Fairy Godmother
I recently went to the Torundian Ball, Torucon, and met a lot of lovely people. Among them, the volunteers. They were very helpful and friendly, and it got me thinking. Should I sign up to be a volunteer?

The sweetest cake for you to make

If a cake you wanna bake, there's items you must take:

Give a hug to a chicken, in return for 4 eggs, hvite and round
Gather up into a cup, 5 spoonfuls of sugar, though I'm sure you're sweet enough
Grind with a song, some grains for flour, 125 grams within the hour
Gather a spoon, small and neat, of scrumptious vanilla, powdered just for you
And lastly a small golden spoon, with powder for baking, to make the cake grander

With a spring in your step, as gently as can be, whip your eggs and your sugar, till thick and smooth it become. Be not afraid to whip these things, for it is not done with a whip, but a whisk, you see. Gather your animal friends with a merry song, and with their help, sieve the flour through a spiders web, into your bowl, neat and tidy. Add the powders with a songbirds beak, and with a beavers tail, gently stirr the mix so sweet.

Lift the bowl on doe's antlers, and pour it all in a tin, no more than 22 centimeters big. Make sure to place some paper of baking in the bottom before you do, or a sad time you might have at the end of it all. Bake the cake in your oven hot, ask a dragon to assist. Be sure the oven is set at 175 degrees celsius, and place your cake straight in the middle, to the song of a fiddle. Bake it for 30 to 40 minutes, check if it is done with the help of hummingbirds beak. Make sure to cool it down before you remove it from the tin, or you might get a boo-boo or two on your hands.

Split the cake in two or three parts, and fill it with all the sweet things you might want. Place it on a platter, any you might like, and with your dearest friends, share your lovely cake with joyous delight

Evil Queen 's apple pie

Every queen has need of a magical pie, be it for enemies or just out of boredom. One never knows when one needs to get rid of a problem. Who said villainy has to be boring!

Piecrust:

- 1 3/4 cups (260g)of plain peasant flour made by a poor man
- 1/2 cup (75g)of self-levitating flour gathered at midnight
- 185g of unsalted butter, chilled, sliced by a sword into small pieces
- 1/3 cup (75g) of the sweetest sugar
- 2 eggs laid by a grey hen
- 1 tbsp of chilled water from a waterfall
- 1 tbsp of milk milked by a fair maiden
- ice-cream made from brown cows

Filling

- 45g of unsalted butter from a cow as white as milk
- 1/2 cup (110g)of caster sugar bought from a dwarf
- 8 large green apples picked from the queens garden
- Juice of 1 Ultimate lemon
- 1/4 tsp of cloves crushed to dust

Step 1

Sift flour and a pinch of salt brutally counterclockwise into a large mixing bowl. Add butter and rub lightly with a feathered touch into flour with your fingertips (unless you are a queen, then you let the servants do the dirty work). Continue until mixture resembles breadcrumbs, then lightly levitate the sugar into the bowl mixing gently. Lightly beat 1 egg into submission with 1 tablespoon chilled waterfall water, then drizzle over flour mixture. Have your servant mix gradually as you watch majestically. Divide dough into two pieces, one slightly larger than the other. Wrap in plastic wrap, and chill for 30 minutes

Step 2

To make the filling, peel and core the apples, and cut each

Ask to borrow a child. Any child will do. Tickle the child. If the child doesn't laugh, try something else. Make the child laugh, and presto! You have made your very own fairy. Use with care into 8 pieces. Make sure to do it gently so the magic of the apples doesn't weaken. Place the butter and sugar in a large pan over medium-low heat. When butter has melted, add apples and spices, then stir to coat. Chanting magical spells of flavour will improve the result of this step

Step 3

Roll out the largest pastry ball and flatten it to a thickness of 2mm precisely! Press the flattened pastry into a pie dish. Press the corners down with gentle magical movements to ensure perfection and allow excess pastry to overhang. Add the pie filling to the pie while thinking of your worst enemy. Flick your wrist in an hourglass pattern to flatten the smaller pastry piece to a circle and add that to the top of the pie. Should you lack magical ability it is likely you are a peasant. And as a peasant you can do this step with your hands if needed

Step 4

Lift the pie dish and cut excess pastry from edges with a sharp knife. This knife can later be repurposed, should the pie not rid you of your enemies. Chill the pie for 30 minutes. Preheat the oven to 180C or use the required fire magic. Place the pie dish on a baking tray and cut air vents in the centre of the pie. Brush top of pie with beaten egg, and bake for 45 minutes or until golden brown

Step 5

Serve warm or cold to your enemies with ice-cream. Beware of angry dwarfs

SHREK SWAMP PASTA

Ingredients

1 serving of pasta of your choice

Veggie sauce

1 clove of garlic for the breath. This is perfect for making sure your breath is strong enough to chase away any intruder or any pesky Fairytale creatures who dare enter your Swamp!

1/4 cup baby spinach leaves. Baby spinach is much crisper than the adult version. Should baby spinach be difficult to track down, you can always throw in a baby 1 tbsp rotten lemon juice crushed under your fist. Perfect for a sour mood

1 tbsp olive oil. Pixie oil is a perfect replacement and a lot more fun to hunt down

1 medium avocado stolen from your neighbour

1+bsp swamp water

Additional seasoning

Ogre earwax

Eyeballs plucked from screaming peasants

Instructions

1. Cook pasta according to instructions.
2. Meanwhile, make the sauce by smashing all ingredients together in a food processor until smooth. If it is too thick, add a little bit more oil or donkey tears. Season with salt and pepper, swampfrogs and earwax to taste
3. Drain the pasta, add the sauce and stir together in the pot until everything is well combined. The drained water can later be repurposed to throw at annoying guests

Serves 4 Humans, 16 fairies and 1/3 of an ogre, but why would you share

10 Great Magical Summer Brews! The ConText have tested them all

10. Strength potion

This disgusting creation is only meant as a test of bravery for dumb brutes. The insane choice of mixing Limpwurt root (gathered from the pelts of monsters) and Tarromin (the weed of potions) did not get on well with the tasting panel. This excrement-looking, foul-tasting drink was made by cavemen on a bad day. It makes you strong and dumb. GIVE IT A GOOD YEEEEET!!!

9. Resurrection potion

You might be wondering...who died? Do not worry, no one died! But we can now tell you what drinking a resurrection potion while still being alive feels and tastes like. And for someone who is still alive..this packs a punch! This great mixture of absinthe and lemon will surely curl your tongue, with a sizzling after-effect and the taste of iron. This will give you a pounding headache for about an hour, then keep you dizzy for the rest of the day. But on account of its massive price, we don't recommend this as your summer drink of choice

8. Potion of clarity

This is the new educational drug that everyone is talking about. Because this drink makes you learn a 100% faster, with NO disadvantages! Including taste! This tastes like warm milk and water, with the added effect of a bad coffee that kicks you into an overdrive of awakedness and concentration. Although, now that school is out and summer is in, let's keep this drink on hold until winter

7. Luck brew

This drinks earthy taste of grass and dirt will definitely keep you grounded! But unfortunately, it gives more of an autumn feeling than that of summer. The pulp in the drink certainly doesn't help. It is too sweet and too muddy to make it far in this test. But at least you won't trip over your own feet going down the stairs!

6. Poison (frog)

Our taste panel needed to do a swap of tasters for this one! Poison is not everyone's cup of tea, so we got a few seasoned alchemists and assassins to help us out, as this is more down their alley. According to our testers, this brew with its slimy consistency and biting taste is perfect for summer. A fresh, bitter drink to enjoy in the summer sun, but do not drink without experience, nor too many! The consequences might be slower heart-rate, blurry sight, pale skin and skull-shaped puffs of smoke when you breathe

If you're thinking of buying from a local ranch to help the environment, this is the way to go. Our wonderful local farmer Malon sells this sweet milk for just 10 rupee, a nice song or some extra help on the farm. A cool glass of milk with ice cubes is the best choice on a hot summer day while enjoying a chocolate cake or some Oreos. We at the ConText support our local businesses!

If your name isn't Flash or Sonic and you need to clean your house in a hurry before your friends arrive, or need to finish up that cosplay before the con, this is the drink for you. This mix of water, sugar and the ever wonderful Nether Wart has a succulent and iconic pink look to it and a sweet taste anyone will enjoy. Just make sure to keep it out of reach of children!

This concoction reminds you of a red berry smoothie, just without its sweetness. The panel all agrees this drink is more fitting for a smooth afternoon. The subtle strawberry taste of the renowned glowing mushroom mixed in a base of lesser healing extract, made of mushrooms and gel, gives you that summer feel of Avacyn in the afternoon. And is great to have around when your kid falls off the bike again.

After working in the garden all day, then traveling 10 hours to the cabin with a family of 6 all asking if we are there yet, you can easily become mentally drained and tired. But we at the ConText have the answer. A sour tasting mana potion!. Its fruity blueberry taste with an aftertaste of lemon will make you able to shout another "SOON!" at full volume again with the added patience to wait at yet another gas station for a quick pee and following Slushie.

Did you anger a Mind Flayer? Is your mother-in-law a Hag? Did you get a little carried away with a strange artifact covered with strange hair, skulls and an onyx that you regret ever picking up at Ladehammeren? Then this brew is for you! This mixture of holy water, Icecap and Sorrowmoss has a yellow glow, looks tasty and glows in the dark! Its fresh, minty taste of Icecap and unami-charm of the Sorrowmoss is heaven! This drink will make you feel clean from head to mercy's wing. Serve it in a long glass with a few ice cubes to make this the

The Royal

Dec 22 - Jan 19

This is the week to throw the most magnificent and opulent ball anyone has ever seen! Expect visitors from all over the Kingdom, and maybe even some from beyond the stars. Avoid apples, thorns, and dark crystals, and this might become the most memorable week of this year

The Dragon

Jan 20 - Feb 18

If you're a hoarder of trinkets, shiny tings and valuables, you should take extra heed this week. The majestic Torundian Ball will draw large flocks of adventurers and thrill-seekers your way, and some might be inclined to come for a visit. Take extra heed of little folk, as they are easily drawn to shiny things

The Centaur

Feb 19 - Mar 20

The time is finally right for you to show yourself as you truly are, and not hide behind blankets and tools. This is the time for you to stretch your legs and run free. You might be called upon to train and guide clueless demi-gods, or advise young satyrs on their duties. Stay away from Titans, as they are currently a little grumpy after being locked away for a few decades in a vault

The Merfolk

Mar 21 - Apr 19

You might be considering to defy your parents, and go on an adventure on land this week. Although this might bring you face to face with your True Love, it might also bring vast dangers and potential loss of voice. Be careful if you go ahead with your plans, and keep an eye out for seagulls and crabs, as they might be helpful

The Unicorn

Apr 20 - May 20

Expect a great gathering of pure royalty this week, as the Torundian Castle is having a great ball. If you prefer your solitude, stay away from any settlements, and keep to the Enchanted forest. If you prefer company though, you shall not be disappointed. Keep close to the Torundian Castle, and people will get drawn in by your magical presence and brilliance

The Mage

May 21 - Jun 20

The Moon is currently visiting, so expect a great surge to your magical abilities. You can expect to perform feats previously too difficult for you, with great results. Be careful of wandering adventurers though, as they might draw you in and bring you along on a dangerous quest

The Satyr

Jun 21 - Jul 22

The Gods have decreed that you will come out of retirement this week. Expect blood, sweat and tears as you once again train Heroes and Half-gods, while dodging the God of the Underworld. This might be the week you fulfill your life-long dream!

The Elf

Jun 23 - Aug 22

Forces are stirring, and you might be called upon to provide shelter, wisdom or amazing feats with your bow. Keep a lookout for adventurers and small folk, as they might need your support a little extra this week. This might also be a good week to trim your hair, or get rid of pieces of jewellery you have lying about, cluttering up your home

The Fairy

Aug 23 - Sep 22

The stars suggest that this week might be filled with pirates, out to steal your Dust. This week might therefore be ideal to catch up on your social commitments, especially to Boys who are Lost. Stay away from flying ships, and lanterns, and your outcome this week might be pleasant

The Dwarf

Sep 23 - Oct 22

Minerals have shifted, and promises to bring great wealth this week. Grab your pickaxe, your lantern and sing your way to the nearest mine. Crystals should be a-plenty. Be careful of lost princesses though, as they can become distracting and overwhelming

The Phoenix

Oct 23 - Nov 21

Now is not the time to be reborn. Fantastical adventures are coming your way this weekend, so remaining in your current incarnation is advised. Be sure to hydrate and consume sustenance, as this weekend can become exhausting

The Knight

Nov 22 - Dec 21

Fantastical creature sightings

Keep a lookout for
Torundians this week

Next week's forecast promises heavy sightings of fairies all over the country, with heavy concentrations near castles, royalty and orphans. Trolls, ogres and giants might occur under Bridges and in desolated areas, be wary of early indicators in form of goats, donkeys and golden geoses. Mermaids appear as usual along the coast, but are rarely seen unless you are a royal. If you are a hoarder of gold and valuable items, special care should be taken as there will be light sprinklings of dragons, leuphracauns and bandits at random intervals around the realm. Make sure to bring an up-side-down umbrella when venturing out at night, as there might be a sprinkle of wishing stars throughout the week. And above all, approach wild Torundians, if you spot one, with friendly gestures, as the are known to attach themselves to wanderers
